THE STRATEGIC GUIDELINES FOR NATIONAL DEFENSE26

INTRODUCCIÓN

The National Defense Policy is characterized according to art. 3rd of the National Defense Framework Law No. 18,650, as a public policy. According to the mandate of the norm itself, it must tend through broad agreements to state policies and must comply with the general principles of internal law and international law in coordination with the foreign policy of the State.

In this sense, public policies are understood as the set of guidelines undermined, empowered by the regulatory framework, which seek to create, transform or preserve the conditions in which the life of the population and the various social groups unfolds.

Likewise, the plans pursue objectives and in this particular case, they protect national interests; Therefore, they must be subject to evaluation of results in view of adequate information to the public management society.

The purpose of the National Defense Policy is to guide the comprehensive action of the State in matters of National Defense, a concept conceived in accordance with the contents established in the National Defense Framework Law No. 18,650, voted unanimously by all political parties with parliamentary representation. politically concerting existing and potential resources to protect

It constitutes the document of the highest level of government, which determines the objectives and political guidelines of a general nature, which will guide the different sectoral policies and strategies, seeking to develop the capacities that are necessary to achieve the proposed objectives.

This Policy is based on the principles, values and characteristics of the Uruguayan State, validated with the broadest political support and from society as a whole, to constitute an authentic State Policy.

The foregoing introduces the National Defense Policy into compliance with the national and international regulatory framework and links it to the objectives and priorities of the Government. It is determined as multisectoral and multidisciplinary.

Coordination between different state agencies.

The National Defense Policy as a public policy also tends to reduce or eliminate vulnerabilities and through them mitigate risks and threats.

national interests.

In this sense, these characteristics link National Defense with a projection that extends beyond the periods of government as well as the establishment of priorities for the historical moment and the analysis of existing and planned resources.

The participation of society becomes an element of great value to carry out the action of the State, since it contributes to obtain accurate and updated information, channels additional economic and human resources to the public, gives social support to the policies and allows a greater capacity of public management.

For this, the development of a culture of "National Defense" within Uruguayan society is essential to sensitize it about the importance of issues related to our sovereignty and territorial integrity, National Interests and Objectives.

The nature of the current threats and the high degree of uncertainty that exists, as a result of the speed with which the changes occur, require emphasis on the analysis activity and on the prompt response capacity of the different sectors of the State. To achieve this prompt response, there are characteristics such as versatility, interoperability, sustainability and mobility of the instruments that are used.

The formulation of this document was structured on the basis of different phases. The first phase consisted of describing the world, regional and national context, from which the declaration of our National Interests and the National Defense Objectives can be deduced. The second phase involves the achievement of established objectives.

The integrity of our territory, in the geopolitical and strategic context in which our country is inserted, cannot be ruled out in the future, disputes or pressures of a different nature, to preserve our National Interests.

In this sense, and in view of this reality, it is necessary to highlight that National Defense constitutes a public good, an essential, permanent, non-delegable function.

Uruguayans and Uruguayans.

URUGUAY: SAFETY AND THE DEFENSE

The Uruguayan State is made up of its territory, its people and its government, having the same independence in its foreign relations.

He is the only one who exercises the legitimate monopoly of the available means of coercion, to enforce the democratically established law and order.

approached in the conceptual and institutional dimensions, where the coexistence of different levels, forms of application and fields of action of the

and other actors of the national reality.

Security, in general terms, is understood as the condition that generates the necessary and indispensable guarantees for a society and each one of its members against threats of any nature, while Defense is an act or set of acts carried out to obtain or safeguard the conditions that provide the sensation of Security.

The concept of Security addressed aspects of military defense and public security, the practice and institutional development of our country, it has progressively differentiated its fields in different ways, typical of the evolution of processes at the national level.

At present, and in accordance with what is established in our current legislation, particularly in the National Defense Framework Law No. 18,650, the concept of Security is included in the concept of National Defense, which includes the set of civil and military aimed at preserving the sovereignty and independence of our country, to preserve the integrity of the territory and its strategic resources, as well as the peace of the Republic, within the framework of the Constitution and the laws; contributing to generate the conditions for the present and future social well-being of the population.

National Defense constitutes a right and a duty of the citizenry as a whole, in the manner and under the terms established in the Constitution of the Republic and in the laws. It is a public good, an essential, permanent function, mind the energies and resources of the whole of society.

Military Defense constitutes an essential function of the State linked to the guarantee and maintenance of its sovereignty and the integrity of its population, territory, strategic resources and institutions; covering security issues related to the external sphere, in terms of the strategic environment of the foreign policy of use of military force by the State, based on risks or threats related to its own integrity and independent and sovereign existence.

National legislation has consolidated the principles of leadership, governance, civil leadership and democratic control of the Armed Forces, generating an institutional system with hierarchies of political decision and operational action, aimed at the joint action of its components, endowed with a budget which must correspond to the functions and missions provided for in their legal and institutional frameworks, under the responsibility of the Ministry of National Defense.

For Uruguay, Public Security includes all the instruments available to the State to ensure the normal development of life in society and prevent the rights of individuals from being violated.

For the performance of this State function, in its particular missions and responsibilities, public security systems are established, with political and technical coordination bodies, whose main operational element is the National Police, whose actions are limited to the national territory, which is regulated by its own legal framework and endowed with

As an exception, the participation of the Armed Forces is contemplated, in support of public security actions, prior authorization from the responsible political authorities and delimited by contingency laws, established in our Constitution.

On the other hand, Regional Security articulates both Public Security and Military Defense, in the understanding that the maintenance of the territorial integrity, sovereignty and peace of Uruguay, demand a scenario of stability and balance in relations interstate, understood as international or regional security, which requires our country and reciprocally on the part of other States, a willingness to cooperate in their strategic environment.

Uruguay considers that the risks and threats to its sovereignty, territorial integrity and to the peace of the Republic, may come from the environment outside its own borders, for which reason Public Security and Military Defense are related to relative security aspects. to the regional and international environment, constituting a privileged area for interstate cooperation in integration processes, with the aim of safeguarding the stability and security of its own and of the region as a common

Uruguay visualizes that regional cooperation and integration in the Military Defense and Public Security sector must advance on the basis of recognition and respect for national differences and particularities, while exploring the formulation of coincident elements to achieve approaches that enable regional concurrence for the construction of spaces for cooperation and complementarity.

THE STRATEGIC SCENARIO

GENERAL

The strategic scenario, at the Global, Regional and National levels, is characterized in the first two by instability and the reduced degree of certainty.

a strengthening of interdependence between States, the emergence of opportunities and threats, among many other factors that intervene in this reality that we face.

THE INTERNATIONAL CONTEXT

YOUR DESCRIPTION

The international context is characterized by high uncertainty and a deterioration of sustainable development expectations, where several poles of power and decision coexist, with the appearance of new actors that participate in the world.

We observe an international environment with countries whose borders may

Within this global framework, the performance of our region has been diverse: while South America has had good levels of growth, the rest of Latin America (because of its type of commercial insertion, which is highly dependent on the US market) has suffered to a greater extent. These vulnerabilities represent a strong threat to the region. Hence, strengthening regional integration processes, on the one hand, and ties with other emerging powers, on the other, is an unavoidable strategic commitment.

The country is facing a political, social, economic, cultural world

Threats can be found at the same time in the internal and external spheres of States.

The new technologies and the interconnection of communication networks open the way to a strong potential for development, becoming a central issue for education and information. Also, these tools have introduced a new dimension in the field of security and defense, generating vulnerabilities that can interrupt or condition the normal functioning of a State.

On the other hand, the dimensions of Power include, in addition to military power, economic productivity, participation in the global market, technological innovation, access to strategic natural resources, as well as intangible factors such as national will and the diplomatic stability.

The interaction of the different actors worldwide with each other and with the elements that make up the various dimensions of power, determine a complex and vulnerable reality to various threats that need to be evaluated in a timely manner.

These threats are not, in general, fully controlled by the countries of the region in isolation; since these can be of great magnitude and have

THE TRENDS AND CHALLENGES OF URUGUAY IN THE REGION

The incorporation of the theme of defense in the processes of regional integration forces us to rethink National Defense in this new context. In the hemispheric sphere, Uruguay believes that it is necessary to promote and contribute to the debate regarding the current performance and relevance of the Inter-American Defense System of which it is a part, particularly the Inter-American Defense Board, the Inter-American Defense College and the Inter-American Treaty on Mutual Assistance. This debate should take place within the framework of the Organization of American States, in accordance with what was suggested to the General Assembly of said organization.

THE NATIONAL CONTEXT: URUGUAY

THE VALIDITY OF ITS GEOPOLITICAL VALUE

The Oriental Republic of Uruguay is a country with an extensive coastline, maintaining in its capital the nucleus of predominance not only geoeconomic, but also geohistorical, geopolitical and geostrategic.

The Río de la Plata basin is presented as the gateway to the vital core of the Southern Cone.

Our country has in the regional environment, a privileged position regarding access to the external basin of the Río de la Plata, shared with Argentina, both for its maritime trade and for the exploitation of its natural resources.

It has various exit options to the Atlantic Ocean, which constitute access to maritime communication lines for its destination.

The country is part of a bi-oceanic corridor, which is presented as an opportunity for economic and social development.

It also covers those land, air and sea spaces for which the State has acquired responsibility before the International Community.

URUGUAY AND THE WORLD. INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS _

The State has a strong vocation to support the international community, with an early participation in International Conferences, as well as in the former League of Nations and as a founding member of the United Nations.

Uruguay is integrated into the International Community through international organizations such as the UN, the OAS and UNASUR, before which responsibilities related to Security and Defense were assumed.

Principally, through diplomatic action and the policy of participation in UN peace missions, as a commitment to collective security established in the United Nations Charter.

The Foreign Policy of our country gives high priority to the relationship with neighboring countries and will continue to do so. In this sense, MERCOSUR and UNASUR are its main areas of integration.

In this way, the strengthening of the regional bloc becomes an unavoidable strategic priority, being of the utmost importance to promote it, as a platform that enhances the country's capacity for external insertion.

PUBLIC SAFETY _

For Uruguay, Public Security includes all the instruments available to the State to ensure the normal development of life in society and prevent the rights of individuals from being violated.

It is a social necessity, indispensable for human coexistence and an essential task, and as such, a non-delegable responsibility of the State which, from the Ministry of the Interior as the governing body for public security policies, calls on all of society to get involved and participate. in tion for sustainable human development.

Citizen security promoted by the State combines the actions of the National Police, as a civil and public force dedicated to the prevention, deterrence and repression of crime, with the design and implementation of social policies that promote the deepest integration of society. .

Public security understood in this way, is embodied in the permanent actions of the National Police as a civil, hierarchical and professional force that ensures the rule of law throughout the national territory. This police action is a complex process that goes from the design and execution of intelligence activities that make it possible to evaluate and anticipate threats to social peace, with the coordination at the ministerial level, of coexistence policies that articulate with society through political institutions and social that strengthen it.

On the current geopolitical map, international criminal organizations governments and substantially affect societies. In this scenario, there classic missions, such as controlling the movement of goods and people, are economic and computer science and theft of sensitive information for national interests. The fight against these higher levels of transnational crime requires the State to develop increasing capacities for international coordination and a permanent improvement of its material resources and the professional level of its members.

In this historical stage, the Executive Branch has systematically and pro- in the "Consensus Document" generated by the Inter-Party Public Security Commission, thus concretizing the objective of promoting a true state policy.

THE MILITARY DEFENSE

The Country's Military Defense is based on the capacity of its Armed Forces and on the potential of mobilizable national resources, in accordance with what is provided for in the regulations, particularly the Military Defense Policy.

Under the political leadership of the Ministry of National Defense, these are constituted as the organized, equipped, instructed and trained branch to carry out the military acts imposed by the National Defense, within the framework of the Constitution and the laws.

In times of peace, they may provide services or collaboration in activities that are requested of them due to their specialty, social relevance or public convenience and without implying detriment to the fulfillment of their fundamental mission.

The Constitution of the Republic and the National Defense Framework Law No. 18,650 constitute the highest-level framework documents related to National Defense and Military Defense in particular.

Since Military Defense is an integral part of National Defense, it is also a right and a duty of all citizens, in the manner and under the terms established in the Constitution of the Republic and the laws, constituting an essential function, permanent, non-delegable and integral to the State.

It will imply the execution of strategic actions aimed at strengthening the ground military presence and collaboration, within the framework of action given by the National Defense Law, in socio-economic development.

In the South Atlantic, it is necessary for the Country to have resources capable of exercising surveillance and control of Uruguayan jurisdictional waters, as well as maintaining the security of maritime communication lines,

It is also required to have the means and capacity to exercise surveillance and control of its airspace, as well as to maintain the safety of air navigation lines.

In these three spaces, cooperation with neighboring countries must be strengthened for the defense of natural wealth and the environment, among others.

cooperation between peoples, Uruguay will participate in humanitarian actions and peace missions based on the provisions of the National Defense Law.

The contents of the Military Defense Policy must be in accordance with the Foreign Policy of the State.

THE FUTURE SCENARIO

From the analysis of the Strategic Context, it can be seen that the most probable future scenario, for the period 2014-2030, will be characterized by:

Complexity and uncertainty will continue to be the main characteristics of the environment, defining an unpredictable and unstable environment where the areas will have no frontiers

The market economy will continue, during the review period, in force in the world as a consequence of globalization

they will be increasingly dependent on virtual spaces, which will generate a need for domain protection of the cyberspace of the wide spectrum of telecommunications

Natural resources, particularly energy, will give rise to geopolitical competition between states, largely as a result of a marked increase in demand, associated with demographic growth.

The environment will continue to be degraded, accelerating climatic changes, which will cause major natural disasters, generating eventual strategic partners.

will be more frequent, increasing the probability of conflicts with non-state actors or as a consequence of the institutional weakness that affects several states in the world

, In order to satisfy their interests, given the increased need for resources, technological advances, environmental changes

The lines of communications through which goods, services and information run, particularly in international waters and in cyberspace, will be reconfigured

Access to food will be more difficult, its cost will increase, generating poorer conditions in societies, debilitating them, making them more unstable

Migrations from the most depressed areas of the world will increase

The growth of the world population will intensify the vicious circle of due to its development

MERCOSUR, UNASUR within it, the American continent, will continue to strengthen

The role of the UN in world processes will be open to questioning, but it will remain valid

NATIONAL INTERESTS THAT INSPIRES URUGUAY

International relations, in generic terms, are ruled by a complex action of actors, interests and norms that stimulate or limit the power and prestige of Nations, where the country does not escape this reality. In achieve their National Objectives, this being able to generate scenarios of cooperation or competition of various intensities.

In this way, it becomes essential to structure the National Defense in accordance with the possibilities of the State, to preserve sovereignty and National Interests in compatibility with those of the region, particularly UNASUR. Thus, from the evaluation of the different scenarios described above, the National Interests and Objectives emerge.

The preservation of National Interests is closely linked to the vital and strategic force for the country.

Vital National Interests are characterized by being of paramount importance. essential for the country.

They include: - The National Sovereignty and the Independence of the State.

- Territorial integrity.

- The life and liberty of its inhabitants. na

The Strategic National Interests are those that contribute to ensuring Vital National Interests.

They understand:

- International Law and the promotion of peace.
- International integration and regional integration.
- Girls and boys as the main strategic interest of the country.
- The preservation of democracy in the region.
- The economic, cultural and social development of the country.
- The protection of the environment.
- The presence in the Antarctic Continent.
- Strategic renewable and non-renewable natural resources.
- The development of knowledge.

THE OBJECTIVES OF THE NATIONAL DEFENSE

OBJECTIVES OF A PERMANENT NATURE

- Guarantee the Sovereignty, Independence and Peace of the Republic, its Constitution and its Laws.
- Guarantee Territorial Integrity.
- Protect the life and integrity of its inhabitants and their cultural identity.
- Support the Republican-Democratic System of Government and the Rule of Law, as well as the economic and social development of the country.

STRATEGIC OBJECTIVES

- Contribute to maintaining peace, international security, solidarity and respect for human life.
- Strengthen the country's educational and social infrastructure to ensure the capacities of children, providing opportunities for their development.
- Strengthen the democratic commitment in the region.
- Strengthen the country and the acquisition of technology.
- Protect renewable and non-renewable strategic natural resources.
- Contribute to the protection of the environment.
- Maintain and promote a greater presence of the Uruguayan State in the Antarctic Continent.
- Strengthen the presence of the State in land, sea and air spaces of national interest, as well as in the international organizations that regulate them.

These obstacles could eventually become threats that affect national sovereignty, its independence, territorial integrity and Threats are understood to be all those real or perceived actions that have an intrinsic potential to negatively affect national interests and objectives.

They can be of natural origin, but those caused by a State, organization, group of people or person, have an intention.

THE DETERIORATION OF THE ENVIRONMENT

Caring for the environment and national development are not conflicting objectives but rather complementary ones. The development model with growth promoted by Uruguay must prevent the contamination of our country's water, air and soil, all of which are strategic resources that are threatened by their potential inappropriate use.

Natural disasters, with various causes, constitute a serious threat to the country of increasing magnitude. The negative effects of more frequently, they produce natural disasters of superior importance, affecting both the infrastructure and the economic and productive activity, as well as the life and health of our population; constituting a new scenario of dangerous phenomena to which Uruguay is exposed.

Additionally, this environmental deterioration aggravates the effects of natural disasters that are already occurring in the region and the world and is connected to the problem of the progressive scarcity of natural resources (and therefore new emerging social and health vulnerabilities.

THE EMERGENCE OF PANDEMICS

These diseases affect a significant proportion of the population and in many cases generate serious sequelae, negatively affecting the countries.

Environmental deterioration, changes experienced in the climate or the use of biological weapons can affect human beings both directly and indirectly, through the contamination of plants, animals, food, air or drinking water, acting as transmission vectors of a pandemic that could threaten the country, affecting everything from the health of its citizens to its economic and social structure.

ORGANIZED CRIME

Organized Crime is understood to be the association of people, with a certain logistical and economic infrastructure that allows them to expand internationally.

This type of activity threatens the stability of the democratic institutions of the State, damages its international image, the economic, social and cultural development of the country, contributing to the proliferation of domestic crime and increasing its effects.

DEMOCRATIC INSTABILITY IN THE REGION

In the present decade there have been several episodes of rupture or attempted rupture of the democratic order in the region.

deep social, and simultaneously emerge other mechanisms that damage democracy and the institutions that sustain it in more subtle and complex ways than those used in the past.

The validity of democracy is an unavoidable condition of the regional integration process. The weakening or loss of it in any of the countries of the region generates obstacles to the consolidation of integration, and may even lead to setbacks in said process and loss of legitimacy of the external agenda of the regional bloc vis-à-vis other blocs or countries.

THE APPROPRIATION AND IMPROPER CONTROL OF THE STRATEGIC RESOURCES

In the current international context, the appropriation of certain resources considered strategic constitutes a potential threat to Uruguay.

Taking into account that they are located in certain places, both politically and territorially, it is reasonable that the States that have strategic natural resource reserves feel threatened by the possibility of being involved in a dispute over their control.

Additionally, natural resources must be taken into account, which at the moment are not under the formal sovereignty of any country, such as those existing in Antarctica and the seabed.

THE STRATEGIC GUIDELINES FOR THE NATIONAL DEFENSE

ner, describing a set of actions tending to achieve and maintain them, considering the magnitude of the obstacles that have been exposed.

In merit of what has been stated, general guidelines are established to protect the Vital and Strategic National Interests, through the achievement and maintenance of the National Defense Objectives, both established in this document, anticipating and mitigating short-term and structural vulnerabilities. Likewise, there are national interests that generate objectives that have a transversal impact on various areas of the Uruguayan State.

II.- THE STRATEGIC GUIDELINES OF THE NATIONAL DEFENSE

1.- NATIONAL ASPECTS

- Preserve the sovereignty, independence and integrity of the national territorial.
- Preserve the Rule of Law and strengthen the State and government institutions as an expression of Democracy, as representatives of the sovereign people.
- Promote knowledge of Human Rights –civil, political, economic, social and cultural- as the best way to protect and deepen them.
- Promote care, family affection and protection from childhood, as a contribution to the present well-being, but above all the future of the population.
- Promote the adequate development of childhood and adolescence and promote their educational inclusion, as conditions for the future of the nation.

- Promote education in all its aspects and aimed at the general population, as a contribution to the national development strategy; as well as llo.

- Promote cultural identity, as well as the various aspects of culture national and institutional in the inhabitants of the Republic.
- Foster a culture of National Defense at all levels and spheres of society and develop a strategic vision to optimize it.
- Promote within the national territory, integration, development and cooperation in border areas, as well as dictate the necessary legislation in this regard.
- Promote and strengthen the establishment of populations in the border areas and in those that are considered strategic by the competent authority, stimulating the installation of public services, fostering employment policies and the creation of the necessary infrastructures.
